Transportation Logistics Management, Inc. (TLM) was awarded a new, national contract, by Educational and Institutional Cooperative Service, Inc. (E&I) to supply transportation logistic services and management, focused on significantly reducing costs and improving freight processes to its 1600 + members.

Denver, Colorado, September 1, 2010- As the contracting arm for Nat'l Association of Educational Procurement (NAEP), E&I is the largest North American, member owned, not-for-profit buying cooperative dedicated to higher education, K-12 and Healthcare Associations.

“It’s no secret. Shipping costs are a big part of the total cost of our members’ purchases” stated the management team of E&I. “And while implementing and managing an inbound freight program can help to control freight costs, most members simply don’t have the resources or personnel to effectively execute this kind of program on campus. E&I’s new contract with Transportation Logistics Management (TLM) provides a solution.”

“TLM is very excited about working with E&I and its extensive membership,” explained Bob Tuohy, CEO of Transportation Logistics Management, Inc. “We believe that there is a real synergy between the two organizations and that utilizing our program, the members will be able to realize real savings on commodities that they already are purchasing. Over the last 18 months, we have met with over 500 procurement groups and organizations and more than 1800 procurement professionals to develop a comprehensive savings program. It was designed specifically for universities, governmental procurement departments, educational departments, school districts and other procurement departments and is showing savings of up to 50% or more with procurement organizations throughout the United States.” He went on to say, “It is a program that was designed by procurement professionals for procurement professionals.”

Transportation Logistics Management Inc. has grown in reputation and success by securing contracts with the State of Arizona, State of Kansas, and the University of California System-including 10 campuses. They are providing cost-saving services to cities, counties, school districts and universities throughout the United States. Additionally, they have sought the input and validation of many of the top procurement professionals throughout the United States, who have been instrumental in providing advice and direction in the development of TLM’s Freight Management Program.

TLM will be staging educational online webinars and workshops throughout the US to demonstrate the simplicity of their program. For further information, please contact TLM (toll free), at 1.866.849.0171 and speak with either Mike Hutchins (President), ext. 224 or Paul Raeder (VP), ext. 232.
